Country Woman's Club New Library.

The Country Woman's Club has progressed far enough with the proposed club and library building as to be able to tell the plans for the new and attractive building which will adorn the club's lot on the corner of First street and Campbell avenue. Plans for the building have been drawn by Architect G. W. Page, of San Jose. what material will be used, whether concrete or frame covered with expanded metal and cement, depends on how generously the call for funds is met by the citizens of the district to be benefitted.

While the exterior will be an attractive example of the mission style, the interior of the main room, 29 by 49 feet, will be artistic with its beamed ceiling and clinker brick fire place. At one end of the building will be a spacious committee room, with its floor elevated two feet. This room will serve as a stage and lecture platform, being shut off from the main library room with a rolling partition.

With its red tile roof and spacious vestibule opening on two entrances, the building will present a pleasing exterior, and as the roof beams are carried out under the eaves, the new home of the Campbell library, when the where-with-all for its construction has been raised and turned into concrete form, will be attractive and an ornament to Campbell.

While the present plan is to use existing book cases for the store of the library's volumes, the floor plan and window openings have been so arranged by Mr. Page that should built-in stacks be required by the growth of the collection, they can be put in for a minimum of additional cost.

Citizens of Campbell who have been approached for subscriptions are praising the Country Woman's Club for its enterprise, which they say will be supported by the community in so substantial a manner that the early erection of the building is a probability.

Mr. George Field of Michigan is stopping with his nephew, J. F. Duncan.

Another Fire for Campbell.

A fire broke out Thursday evening at about eight o'clock, and consumed the new store building of Silas Price and the barn formerly owned by Mrs. Martinie, but recently sold to Mr. Childs of Palo Alto. Just how the fire started no one seems to know, but when first discovered fire was coming from the outhouse adjoining the barn, and was probably the result of cigarette or cigar ashes.

As soon as the alarm was sounded a small army of workers were on hand to assist in saving adjoining property, but this was a difficult task, there being but little water available. An attempt was made to get water from the cannery by the use of Mr. Ainsley's long line of hose, but it was not long enough to reach the fire. Steam was up in the boiler and the hose was attached and a bucket brigade carried the water from the end of the hose to the fire.

The effort to save the former telephone building proved successful, but only after determined and rather hazardous work by a number of men—notably Jas. Burns, Harry Weeks and Mr. Claver, who faced a severe fire while applying water to the adjoining building. There were others who rendered valuable assistance.

We haven't heard what the probable losses are and whether there is any insurance. The buildings were practically empty.

Fortunately there was no wind blowing or there would be a different tale to tell, for adjoining buildings might have been destroyed, with a heavy loss. It again emphasizes the necessity of better fire protection for our town.

L. T. Cook sustained painful injuries one night the fore part of the week. On going into the stable he stumbled, and in falling hit his head against something which caused quite a cut, requiring several stitches. We understand that he remained on the floor unconscious for some time, or until discovered by his wife. He is getting along nicely.

Mrs. Chas. West of Santa Margarita with her children is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. C. Ainsley.

HOW DID IT HAPPEN?

Wonderful Irregularities in the Re-count of Votes.

(San Jose Times, Wednesday)

The recount of East San Jose precinct yesterday presented many interesting features. Perhaps the most important one, in connection with the case in hand, was the fact that the original count showed ten straight Socialist tickets. Thus, Bell, the Socialist candidate, had ten votes for sheriff on the original count. Now he has but three. How did he lose the seven? Where did they go? Over in the Ross square there are now seven nice little purple crosses. That kills seven of Bell's votes, doesn't it? That didn't hurt Bell any, but it helped Ross seven votes.

The above statement is a fact which should be remembered, in order to analyze the East San Jose vote.

The recount of the ballots from the East San Jose precinct was continued yesterday. All day long the caller and the tally clerk responded in a sing-song tone that was tiresome. But while the work seemed uninteresting, it may prove to be the most important which has yet been done in connection with the Ross-Langford contest.

It has already been demonstrated that Ross gained in that precinct on the recount 29 votes, and Langford had lost 16, making a net gain for Ross of 44 votes. That, in itself, is a suspicious circumstance, considering that in many other precincts, no change whatever was shown on the recount.

The recount of the East San Jose precinct was completed just before adjournment. It showed some very peculiar things. In nine cases out of sixty-seven, there were no changes. In a few instances, the change amounted to but two or three.

But Hayes, Republican, gained 14 votes. Davis, his opponent, lost 23, making a total gain for Hayes of 37 votes. How can that be? Search the ballots.

Ross had 111 votes on the official count, but on the recount he has 140. The official count gave Langford 120 votes; the recount 105.

Fitzgerald had 101 on the official count, but the recount gave him but 81. While Wallace had 119 at first, and now has 137, making a total gain for Wallace of 38 votes.

Conant had 93, official count. He now has 122. His opponent, Monahan, had 98, and now has 86, making a total gain for Conant of 41.

Free had 95, and now has 108. His opponent, Cambbell, had 129 but now has 113, making a gain for Free of 29 votes.

Flannery had 90, and now has 100, while Treanor, his opponent had 121, but now has 116, making a gain for Flannery of 15.

Thus it will be seen that the Republicans gained by the recount, while many Democrats lost on the recount. This points almost unerringly to the fact that whoever made the changes did it in the interest of a certain few.

The board of East San Jose was certainly in sympathy with the administration, and it is difficult to understand why the board should discriminate in favor of the pronounced opponents of the administration. This they certainly did, providing the votes were on the ballots when the original count took place. The votes are there now, all right, and it is almost unthinkable to suppose that the board would or could have failed to have counted them if they had been there when the original count took place.

Most of the candidates favored by the administration gained largely by the recount. This does not indicate, it should be understood, that there was any lack of care in either the count or recount. All who are familiar with the case, and the manner of counting ballots, will admit that. It is easy enough to count a vote when the ballot has been properly stamped.

But the facts as brought out by the recount does almost unmistakably indicated fraud. And the method followed by those who committed the fraud must eventually be made plain. By the process of comparison and elimination, the case is narrowing down so that it may be said that the fraud was committed in a certain manner, and that the conditions of the case made it impossible for the crime to have been committed by any but certain specified men.

It is certain that much more than can be given to the public at this time is known by the attorney in the case. The evidence is accumulating, day by day, and the end approaches.

It will not cost you a cent to try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and they are excellent for stomach troubles and constipation. Get a free sample at Farmers Union, agents.

Eliminate the Nuisance, Sir

Chickens and cows are money fetchers when properly cared for, and offer a telling argument of industry to their owners at this season of the year, as they contribute their quota to the family board. All self-respecting citizens acknowledge the right and wisdom of owning them, providing that the rights of their neighbors are respected and protected.

Residents within the corporate limits have a right to expect that their endeavors to add to the sightliness of their homes by cultivating unhedged garden plots will be adequately protected from predatory incursions of bovines or their feathered acquaintances.

Canines of number and size innumeral also threaten to make the stray animal pest even more unsatisfactory.

Need we point the remedy? Here is a legitimate channel for "Park Commission" enterprise and helpfulness. To the fray, ye valiant!—Mountain View Register.

The Election Contest.

THE recount of the ballots from the East San Jose precinct in the Ross-Langford contest during the past week has brought out some of the most startling discrepancies of the contest. Langford's attorneys claim they have undisputable evidence that the ballots have been tampered with since leaving the hands of the election officers, while the opposition now claim that the irregularities occurred through mistake rather than as the result of any intentional fraud on the part of any member of the board.

Judge Welch has evidently satisfied himself in regard to the Ross-Langford election contest. After two weeks of private investigation he has instructed the attorneys to bring in final evidence bearing on the case.

To Move the Capital.

The bill to let the people vote on the question of removing the State capital from Sacramento to Berkeley passed the Senate yesterday afternoon by a vote of 30 to 9. It is said that the Governor will in all probability sign the bill and that it will be submitted to the people in November of next year.

Superintendent Bateman Furnishes Some Information.

The Law in regard to registration to vote for school trustee. To vote at election of school trustees, elector must be resident of school district for thirty days, a qualified elector of the County, registered in the precinct where the election is held at least thirty days before the election. Registration for election of School Trustee closes March 5th., 1907.

If an elector was on the Great Register of the county at the election held in November, 1906, or subsequent thereto and still resides in the precinct in which he registered for said November, 1907 election, and resides in the school district in which the school election is held, he is qualified to vote at the school election.

Or, concisely stated; to vote at a school election, you must be registered 30 days in the precinct, must reside 30 days in the district.

The register of 1906 is still in force for the school electors.

Campbell's Celebration.

Campbell's Old Settlers' celebration last Friday was all that the Campbell people had hoped for, the day being not altogether unpleasant as to weather, and as usual the crowd was here. Chairman Whitman made a good presiding officer. He welcomed the multitude present to this the twelfth anniversary.

Rev. E. S. Williams of Saratoga offered the invocation.

The high school young ladies' quartet rendered "You're a Grand Old Flag" in pleasing manner.

Dr. Cooper recited some interesting reminiscences of the town. "Some of the Needs of Campbell" was the subject of Rev. A. H. Needham's address, which was full of good suggestions. Professor Cathcart of Stanford delivered the main address of the day, "Optimism and Pessimism" being the subject, and he was attentively listened to. Prof. James spoke on the ever-interesting subject of the library.

Noon having arrived nearly all present sat down to the basket lunch, twelve long tables being filled, estimated at 500 persons.

A splendid two hours' concert by the Stanford orchestra was the afternoon's event, and the celebration was over, it being a credit to the committees having the affair in charge.

The concert at the Congregational Church in the evening by the Campbell Choral Society, assisted by Los Gatos and San Jose Societies, under the leadership of Prof. M. L. Lawrence, was an unusually interesting program and was greeted by a full house.

A New Fruit Industry for Campbell.

The California Fruit Syrup Co. of Oakland has leased the Wilson packing house in Campbell (formerly run by Luehning) and is actively at work remodeling the building for immediate use. The new industry will be a valuable adjunct to the already extensive fruit interests of the town and credit belongs to S. L. Hayes for securing this latest enterprise.

The company comes highly recommended and with abundant capital to carry on an extensive business, if necessary, but it is proposed to start in conservatively at first, and branching out as the business warrants. The company expects to make the new enterprise one of the principal industrial institutions of the town.

As soon as we have an opportunity to interview the proprietors we expect to give a more detailed account of the purposes of the company.

Mrs. Vercler Laid to Rest.

Mrs. S. L. Hayes writes home from Salem, Oregon, that the funeral of her mother, Mrs. Vercler, was held in the First Presbyterian Church, of which she was a member for 16 years, and was attended by all her former old friends and acquaintances. The floral offerings which were taken from here were in perfect condition.

Mrs. Vercler came to Campbell to reside upon the death of her husband in 1901, since which time she lived with her daughter. She identified herself with the Methodist Church, and was faithful in attendance until illness prevented.
